

SPOKE IN THE RAIN IN OLE KAINTUCK

BRYAN MEETS BAD WEATHER ON HIS TOUR.

Crowds in Kentucky Submit to a Drenching to Listen to the Democratic Nominee—Will Now Stump Tennessee—Silver Men in Connecticut—Other Political Gossip.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 16.—W. J. Bryan's march through Kentucky continued Tuesday. He spoke to 75,000 persons during the day and evening. He left Louisville at 7:30 o'clock, making his first speech at LaGrange. At Eminence 3,000 people waited in the rain to hear him speak ten minutes. Notwithstanding the heavy rain fully one-third of the crowd were women throughout the entire route, and they vied with the men in according a Kentucky welcome to Bryan.

At Frankfort, the state capital, 8,000 persons stood in the rain for hours waiting for him.

The hubbub continued to increase and the rain to fall faster, so that instead of speaking a half hour, as he intended, Mr. Bryan spoke for only ten minutes from the open stand. He got soaking wet and had to change clothes. Mr. Bryan eulogized Senator Blackburn as one always in the front in every fight for the people.

At Midway, the birthplace of Senator Blackburn, he was greeted by a large and enthusiastic crowd, notwithstanding the rain. He spoke for ten minutes. He was then driven to Senator Blackburn's residence, where he was entertained at breakfast by the senator, followed by an informal reception, when the party left on a special train at 1:30 o'clock for this city, arriving here at 2 o'clock.

The largest crowd of strangers ever seen in Lexington had assembled to welcome the presidential candidate to the blue grass country, they coming from a section representing fully one-third of the state. The streets were lined with people, many of them women and children, while the fair grounds, where Bryan spoke, was filled to overflowing. Fully 50,000 persons assembled there to hear him. It stopped raining just as the train left Versailles and no rain fell until 3:15 o'clock, when a heavy downpour began, drenching the crowd. The rain, however, did not last long, and the crowd remained to hear Bryan speak. He was introduced by State Senator Charles J. Bronston, who gained a national reputation last winter by making a bitter fight for the re-election of Senator Blackburn. Bryan spoke for an hour, his remarks being received with much enthusiasm. He left in the afternoon for Paris and Maysville, where he spoke to large crowds. At night he went to Harrison, Tenn.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS.

State Made Up for Adoption in Today's Convention.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The ticket to be nominated by the democratic state convention, as it stands on the slate, is as follows: For Governor—John Boyd Thacher of Albany. For Lieutenant-Governor—Gen. Isaac Catlin of Brooklyn. Chairman of the State Committee (vice Maj. James W. Hinkley, retired)—Ex-State Treasurer Elliott Danforth of Seneca county. For National Committeeman (vice William F. Sheehan, resigned)—Ex-State Comptroller Frank Campbell of Bath. Temporary Chairman—Thomas F. Grady of New York city. Permanent Chairman—B. H. Rockwell of Chemung.

The platform will indorse the Chicago national ticket and platform, will arraign the last republican legislature as the most extravagant in the history of the state; will say that the Raines' liquor law was merely for the creation of a vast republican machine and to assist in reducing at the expense of a class the tax rate of the state, which would otherwise have been the largest in the history of the state, and among other things, advocate the adoption of more stringent laws regarding trusts.

Silver in Connecticut.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 16.—The democratic state central committee, which has been composed of a majority of gold-standard men, has unconditionally resigned in favor of the Bryan wing of the state democracy. The committee met yesterday and William Kennedy of Naugatuck, who was one of the delegates who voted for silver at the national convention, was chosen chairman unanimously. Chairman Davis and Secretary Fred Brown then resigned. The gold standard men will make no fight at the convention.

FEARS A FINANCIAL CRISIS.

National Bank of Havana Suspends Sale of Drafts on Home Country.

Havana, Sept. 16.—The Spanish Bank has suspended the sale of drafts on Spain, payable in bank notes, and has bought of a well-known banker a draft for $100,000 on the United States, paying for it a large percent. Both of these facts have caused a heavy depreciation of the bank's notes, and today they are at 13 per cent discount. There were no operations on the Produce Exchange today, and it is feared a financial crisis is imminent.

ARRESTED IN PARIS.

Rumor About Alex. Sullivan—Was Visiting His Sick Wife.

New York, Sept. 16.—The World says: "It is rumored that Alexander Sullivan of Chicago, whose name figured so conspicuously though indefinitely in the Cronin murder case, had been arrested in Paris at the instance of the English police."

In connection with the rumor the World's Chicago correspondent telegraphed the following: "Alexander Sullivan went abroad two months ago, to Carlsbad, so it is said. Saturday night last his wife, Margaret Sullivan, was stricken with apoplexy and is now very ill. She cannot be seen. Nothing definite is known here, though it is rumored that Sullivan is in trouble. The belief is that Mrs. Sullivan's attack was caused by some distressing news contained in a cablegram."

"It is said by Irishmen here that Sullivan would not have gone into any dynamiting scheme now. It is possible that he may have been arrested on the theory that he was an Irish invincible, but there is no evidence that he was even remotely connected with the invincibles."

HINTS AT A BIG DEAL.

Rumors That Rockefeller Has Purchased Tom Johnson's Steel Plant.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 16.—A rumor is in circulation here to the effect that John D. Rockefeller, the multi-millionaire, has purchased the great plant of the Johnson steel company at Lorain, but it lacks confirmation. President A. J. Moxham of the Johnson company, when communicated with by telephone, denied the rumor.

The building by Mr. Rockefeller of an immense fleet of ore carrying vessels on the great lakes to carry the ore from his mines in the Superior region has led many people to believe that Mr. Rockefeller intends building or acquiring a big steel plant to convert his ore into manufacturing products.

To Fix Iowa Express Rates.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 16.—A hearing began before the railroad commission of the state Tuesday relative to fixing express rates in Iowa according to a law passed by the last general assembly. E. M. Morsman and C. H. Crosby explained that the rates of express companies are fixed by the railroads and mail rates, practically, it being necessary to compete with mails and railroads not allowing rates less than their own freight charges. W. M. Lamburg appeared for shippers and claimed express companies forced shippers to pay for the longest routes. The hearing will continue to suit the convenience of those interested.

The bandits were resisted by the custom house officers and guards, the battle lasting seven hours. Two of the bandits were killed, two of the Mexican custom house employees were mortally wounded and several slightly wounded. The bandits were finally driven off.

Further Trouble Feared.

Vanceburg, Ky., Sept. 16.—It is feared that further trouble will result from the political row at Martinsburg Saturday night. Thomas B. They carried several tattered battle flags and many new colors and banners. Col. L. J. Clark of this city, who is a member of the same post to which McKinley belongs, made an address which visibly affected Major McKinley. He replied in an eloquent and pathetic speech.

At 5 o'clock in the evening the "Frosty Sons of Thunder," 1,200 strong, came from Somerset county, Pennsylvania. Senator N. B. Critchfield of Somerset was the spokesman. To his address Major McKinley replied.

LATEST FIGURES FROM MAINE.

Careful Estimates Make the Republican Plurality for Governor 46,138.

Portland, Me., Sept. 16.—Corrected returns from the country districts are apparently reducing the republican plurality slightly. The latest figures, based on careful estimates of the votes by counties, give Powers 46,138 plurality over Frank. The complete returns from Cumberland county give Powers, rep., 10,918; Frank, dem., 5,107; republican plurality, 5,811.

In 1892 this county gave the republican ticket 9,987; democrat, 8,988; republican gain in plurality, 4,812.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 16.—The corrected vote has been received from all the towns in Kennebec county. It shows a republican plurality of 4,243, the largest ever given in the county. Powers has 6,697 and Frank 2,404. Milliken's vote is about 60 more than that of Powers.

Rockland, Me., Sept. 16.—The complete vote of Knox county, with the exception of one small plantation, which last year gave a majority of 7 for the republican ticket, is in and gives Powers 3,504; Frank, 1,968.

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 16.—The complete vote of Androscoggin county gives Powers 5,611; Frank, 2,293; republican plurality, 3,318. Republican gain in plurality over 1892, 2,715.

Shift Campaign Lines in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 16.—The republican state committee met here and decided to shift the lines of the campaign slightly. From now on speakers will be instructed to devote attention to the alleged attack of the Chicago platform on the supreme court, and there will be an appeal to the voters to "stand by the party that upholds the principle that the general government has power to suppress such riots as grew out of the Chicago railroad strike." The committee took up the state by districts, and it was announced that the reports indicate a republican victory greater than that of two years ago.

Salis said amnesty would be granted to every man who had been in the rebellion, and that Spain would recall Gen. Weyler and name a representative of the crown in Cuba who would be acceptable to the insurgent leaders. Mr. Huan agreed to lay the proposition before the junta, but told Salis it would hardly be accepted, as nothing short of absolute independence would satisfy the Cubans now.

HOW PARITY IS KEPT.

Letter from Mr. Carlisle on the Financial Question.

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 16.—Secretary Carlisle has written a letter on the subject of the maintenance of the parity between gold and silver. The following are extracts:

"All the standard silver dollars issued from the mints since the passage of the act of 1878, now amounting to more than $433,000,000, have been coined on public account from bullion purchased by the government and are legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private, without regard to the amount, except when otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract between the parties. They belong to the government when coined and they are paid out by the government at a parity with gold for property and services of all kinds, and received from the people at a parity with gold in the payment of all public dues and demands. The government has made no discrimination whatever between the coins of the two metals, gold having been paid on its coin obligations when gold was demanded and silver having been paid when silver was demanded."

"Under this policy the coinage has been so limited by law and the policy of the treasury department that the amount coined has not become so great as to drive the more valuable coin, gold, out of use, and thus destroy the basis of our monetary system; and so long as the two metals are of unequal commercial value, at the ratio established by law, this limitation upon the coinage is, in my opinion, absolutely essential to the maintenance of their parity in effecting exchanges. If the limitation were removed confidence in the ability of the government to preserve equality in the exchangeable value of the coins would be destroyed and the parity would be lost long before the amount of silver coinage had become really excessive."

"It is not doubted that whatever can be lawfully done to maintain equality in the exchangeable value of the two metals will be done whenever it becomes necessary, and, although silver dollars and silver certificates have not, up to the present time, been received in exchange for gold, yet, if the time shall ever come when the parity cannot be otherwise maintained, such exchanges will be made. It is the duty of the secretary of the treasury, and all other public officials to execute in good faith the policy declared by congress, and whenever he shall be satisfied that the silver dollar cannot be kept equal in purchasing power with the gold dollar, except by receiving it in exchange for the gold dollar, when such exchange is demanded, it will be his duty to adopt that course."

ILLINOIS POPULISTS.

Convention at Chicago Makes No Nomination for Governor.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—The state convention of the "middle-of-the-road" populists was called to order at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, but took a recess until evening without effecting a permanent organization. Upon reassembling the platform was read and adopted without a word of debate or a dissenting vote, and then the business of nominating a state ticket was taken up. It is as follows: For lieutenant governor, Henry D. Lloyd; for secretary of state, L. A. Quellmalz; for attorney general, E. I. Burdick; for auditor, Grant Dunbar; for state treasurer, Joseph Scherzger; for trustee of the State university, Mrs. Fannie Kavanaugh; for electors-at-large, A. H. Allen, O. L. Bearss.

No nomination was made for governor.

The platform adopted by the convention was as follows: The people's party of the state of Illinois do hereby declare our allegiance to the declaration of principles set forth in the national platform adopted at St. Louis on July 22, 1896, and the nominees of that convention. We desire further to emphasize as vital points the government ownership of railways and the telegraph, and the establishment of a system of government banking, and particularly direct legislation as an essential feature of a government of the people. We also favor local option in taxation. We protest against violations of the eight-hour day and the child labor law, and demand their strict enforcement. We do most heartily indorse the wisdom of the national convention in the nomination of Thomas E. Watson for vice president of the United States and most emphatically denounce any action which prevents the populists of any state from the privilege of casting their ballots for him.

A BIG ROW IS ON IN THE COUNTY

Democratic Factions Are Very Much At Outs.

PEPPERY RESOLUTION PASSED LAST NIGHT.

The Action of the Committee in Calling the Congressional Convention Is Denounced in Gingers Sentences—Speakers Must Be Had As An Evidence of Life—Many Voters Are Disfranchised—The Pot Boils Over.

WHEREAS, The county convention to elect delegates to the first district congressional convention, has been called to be held at the city of Beloit, instead of at the county seat, an act unprecedented, and
WHEREAS, The time between the issuing of said call and said convention is so brief as to deprive most of the towns and cities of a representation in said convention, and
WHEREAS, Somebody is censurable, therefore, be it by the democrats in the city of Janesville in convention assembled,
RESOLVED, That as to the time and place of holding said convention and those responsible therefor, we express our unqualified disapprobation and censure.

Indicating harmony.

"I move that the chairman—who is a member of the state democratic committee—confer with the chairman of the county committee and see if we cannot have some speakers here. Public opinion is being formed, and if we expect to do any moulting, we must get to work."—Hon. John Winans.

Indicating the need of great managerial activity.

"I have tried to get a speaker for the fair, but have been unable to do so, although I have written and telegraphed for one."—P. J. Mout.

Indicating great democratic interest in the outcome in Rock county. Also, expressive of great hopes.

"Well, we must do something. We must at least show that we are alive."—John Winans.

Indicating that a duty must be performed, anyway.

There's a congressional rumpus brewing.

A mass convention of the democratic party in the city of Janesville was held at the council chamber last night.

Seventeen men attended, they being:

Dr. J. B. Whiting, William Smith,
Hon. John Winans, George M. McKee,
C. C. Russell, P. J. Mout,
C. C. McLean, J. L. Mahoney,
O. H. Brand, N. H. Pulker,
I. F. Connors, Neil Roberts,
F. H. Kothman, Henry Hemming,
J. J. Cunningham, George N. Hubbard.

Gingery Resolution Passed.

After the delegates to the conventions had been named, Hon. William Smith moved that the city delegation cast the whole vote of the delegates "on all questions that may come before the conventions," which motion prevailed.

Hon. John Winans then took the floor. He said that a call for a county convention had been issued, on Saturday, for a county convention to be held on Thursday. This call had not been received in time for publication in the papers, and too late for people in the county districts to select delegates. It was called for Beloit, a city where a county convention had never been called before by either party when it ought to have been called at the county seat, which was central and more convenient for the majority of the delegates. In the third place it was called at an unusual hour—10:30 in the morning—when democratic conventions have always been held in the afternoon.

Many Are Disfranchised.

Evansville people, although they lived on a railway line, would have to start for Beloit at 5 o'clock a. m. He said he could see no reason why the convention should have been called at 10:30 a. m., and why it was not called for a later date so that people might have an opportunity to elect delegates. As it was now two-thirds of the county would be disfranchised. It was a trick of somebody's, and for some purpose, and it ought to be rebuked. He therefore introduced the resolution printed at the head of this article, and moved that the same be presented at the Beloit convention, and that it be spread upon the records of that meeting. The motion was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Winans then moved that the chairman of the county committee and the local member of the state central committee, P. J. Mout, be instructed to get together and see if they could not make arrangements for some speakers in this city. It was quite time that something be done. Election was only six weeks off and the sentiment of the community was being moulded. If democracy wished to mould they must get to work.

"I have tried to get a speaker for the fair on Friday, but have been unsuccessful, although I have written and telegraphed" said P. J. Mout. "Something must be done," replied Mr. Winans, "we must at least show that we are alive."

Congressional Fight Brewing.

There is a fight for the democratic nomination of congressman in this district, and it is said that the "snap convention" which was so bitterly denounced at the caucus last night, is called in behalf of the Beloit candidate, C. W. Metsker. Janesville democrats are not pleased. They say that due notice has not been given them, and that the gag is to be applied. Wilson Lane and J. L. Mahoney of this city, both have many friends who would like to see them nominated. Their friends would also like a chance to advance the cause of their favorites, but the Beloit convention makes any work impossible, owing to the very short time before the meeting. Hence the declaration of war. The action in calling the convention so early, was bitterly denounced last night, and the resolution adopted, was intended to voice the feeling of the convention, and to insure "that it should not occur again."

The routine work of the caucus was as follows:

The Delegates.

P. J. Mout called the caucus to order. On motion of George M. McKee, P. J. Mout was elected chairman. On motion of Henry Hemming, C. C. McLean was chosen secretary. John Winans moved that the respective wards get together and submit a list of names as delegates to both the county and senatorial conventions. Adopted.

The following lists were submitted:

FIRST WARD.
County convention—Horace McElroy, J. P. Baker, Martin Dunn and B. H. Pulker.
Senatorial convention—Frank S. Baines, Harry Garbutt, O. H. Brand and M. J. Sullivan.

IS A PATRIOTIC ANNIVERSARY.

The Centenary of Washington's Farewell Address On September 19.

EDITOR GAZETTE—Washington's farewell address to the people of the United States was first given to the public on the morning of the 19th of September, one hundred years ago. It is a farewell full of wisdom and prophetic knowledge of our needs as a nation and should be read and highly prized by every true American.

Let the people here show their appreciation of Washington and their loyalty to the country be helped to create, by causing on this anniversary a display of the flag on public and private buildings, and by giving heed to the counsel and warning contained in this famous address.

NOVEL ELECTION BET IS MADE

The Price of a Tobacco Crop Depends on the Result.

A novel election bet has been made by Evansville tobacco men. Charles Tuttle has sold his '96 crop of seven acres of tobacco, to Barnard & Wilder, of Evansville, for one and three cents in the bale, provided that McKinley is elected. If Bryan is elected, he is to get one and seven cents. The deal involves about $425, and the sum of $150 has been paid to bind the bet.

A VANDAL RAIDS PUBLIC LIBRARY

NARROW-MINDED PARTY MULTI-LATES BOOKS.

The Whole Chapter Relating to the Coinage Law of 1873 Cut From the File of the Congressional Record—Guilty Person Should Be Caught and Punished.

THE fearful crime of '73 has been avenged. All evidences of it have been wiped out, and thereby hangs a tale. It is a sorry story. It shows, if malicious intent can be proved, that there is some fanatic in Janesville that ought to feel the force of the laws' grip. It demonstrates that some narrow minded party—not a person but a "party"—makes this town his home. It shows conclusively that this party's "think shop" is less than 2x2 inches in size, and that the grey matter has turned black. Also that a headache, with this vandal, would be a physical impossibility, because there is nothing in the skull to ache.

It was this way: A short time ago, one of Janesville's republican speakers visited the public library, to look up, in the Congressional Record, the coinage law of 1873.

Book was mutilated.

Five pages of The Record, are devoted to the law, the article occupying 196 columns in the book. It gives the complete history of the law in congress, and tells all about the speeches made, etc. This republican speaker wanted to "read up" and wanted the best authority to be had. Hence he sought The Record at the library. He got the book, and turned to the page indicated in the index. Only the stubs where the pages had been cut out, greeted his eye. The whole chapter devoted to the coinage law, had been removed from the book, so no information could be had.

Who mutilated the book, and when it was done, are mysteries. Evidently someone was afraid that someone else would learn the truth. Why else should the volume be defaced?

Public library books, like other public property should be protected. The vandal who laid his destroying hand on the book in question, should be found and punished. The public library is one of Janesville's most worthy institutions. Some of the volumes on the shelves are of priceless value. Let the vandal be sought out, and let an example be made that will impress the visitors at the library with the fact that while all may seek knowledge, none can destroy books that will be useful to others.

Schindler Wants to Vote.

In order to make sure that his vote would count for William McKinley at the coming election, Joseph Schindler, of this city, has applied to Clerk of the Court Goldin for his second set of naturalization papers. Mr. Schindler resides on Western avenue. He came to this county in '84 from Switzerland, and soon after taking out his first papers, he lost the documents. He says that he has not voted for a president since he has been in this country, but this year he considers it his duty to support and vote for McKinley for the good of the country.

Band Would Go to Canton.

The Imperial Band will donate their services free of charge if the proposed excursion to Canton, Ohio, is carried out.

THE NEWS OF ROCK COUNTY.

A Porter Boy Is Hurt.

Porter, Sept. 16.—While assisting in cutting corn with a machine, a fifteen year old son of Dan Rogers had his foot nearly severed at the ankle. The sufferer was made as comfortable as possible, and it is hoped no more serious results will follow. H. Fessenden has been visiting at Baraboo, lately. Most of the farmers have finished cutting corn. This town expects to be well represented at the county fair this week. Our base ball nines are dying a violent death. P. W. Tolles is kept busy those days, making cider. Two cents per gallon is charged. Apples were never more plentiful in this locality. Frank Boss expects to resume work in the Eagle factory October 14. Mrs. Ludden has returned, after spending a couple of months with her daughter in Green county. Mrs. Grady, of Elgin, is visiting with her sister, Mrs. F. C. Cheesboro. Some "porkers" were delivered last week from this locality at remarkably high (?) price of $2.80 per cwt. and still the democrats want to rule or ruin. Masters Johnnie and Willie Dooly were the guests of their grandparents in Dayton, during Saturday and Sunday. Miss Katie Ford is spending a few weeks in Hartford, Wis. Mrs. Ella Fitzgerald and daughter, of Albany, spent a few days with relatives the last of the week.

E. R. Wadsworth.

Beloit, Wis., Sept. 15.—Edward R. Wadsworth, who died yesterday in Chicago, was a former business man here. He came here in the 40's and went from here to California and returned in 1851. In 1861 and through the war he held important places in the state military department.

CHEMISETTES AND SKIRTS.

Lace and Ruching Appear Again as Neck Trimmings.

Among the many chemisettes worn this season are some very pretty ones of white, plaited mousseline de soie, with lengthwise ruffles of very narrow venetian lace between the plaits. This combination gives a cool and vaporous effect.

In spite of repeated warnings that the bodice and skirt of differing materials and colors are to be abandoned, they are still fashionable. Their extreme convenience and becomingness are doubtless responsible for their continued hold on favor, although many convenient and becoming styles are ruthlessly dropped at the dictum of fashion. A black or neutral tinted skirt serves for many costumes and occasions, a change of bodice being sufficient to give it quite a different air.

A novelty in linen skirts shows the lining gathered full and mounted on a yoke of lace which is fitted exactly to the hips. Nearly all gowns have a frill, points, squares or a turned down arrangement of lace at the neck, above the standing collar.

BATISTE GOWN.

The fashion of having the material of the bodice come against the skin of the neck, which has prevailed for a number of years, is gradually falling into disuse. It is certainly daintier and more becoming to have an intervening frill of white or cream or a plain linen collar.

A new kind of accordion plaited skirt is being made in Paris. It is all in one piece and is perfectly circular, a round hole in the middle being the waist. From this hole the platings radiate, growing wider as they approach the edge of the skirt.

A sketch is given of a gown of blue batiste. The skirt is finished with two rows of stitching. Over the chemisette of plaited white batiste is a bolero of blue batiste having a large collar and pointed revers of straw faille, the edges of the collar and revers having a fine, narrow trimming of black. The back of the bolero passes under the high, draped corset of black satin, which is ornamented on the right side by two choix of white satin having a paste button in the middle. The hat of pink straw is trimmed with cherries, foliage and black plumes.

Would Like to See It.
He had been telling her what one of his friends would have designated "a fairy story," but which purported to be an explanation of what kept him down-town until after midnight.
"John," she said, coldly, "I wish you would bring home a microscope to-morrow."

"Why, of course, if you want one, but I don't really see—"
"I thought I would like to see what your conscience is like," she interrupted, in the same cold, calculating tone.
Then he realized that his story availed him not.—Chicago Post.

One on Jenny.

"You say you have been engaged to be married three times," said Gus De Smith to Jennie Chaffie.

"Yes, that's so."
"Well, I don't think there will be any use of me making an engagement to go to the theater with you to-morrow night?"

"Why not?"
"Because you don't appear to keep your engagements."—Texas Sifter.

BOYISH LOGIC.

"Petie, what are you doing up in that tree?" asked the gardener, as a thunder-shower was approaching.

"Pa told me that during a storm I should never stand under a tree."—Fliegende Blaetter.

Her Admirers.

"She is very unpopular," said one girl. "It seems to me that everybody tries to avoid her."

"That is saying a good deal," replied the other girl.

"You can't deny it, though."
"Oh, I don't know," was the hesitating answer. "The mosquitoes seem to like her."—Washington Star.

Domestic Confidences.

"I suffer a great deal from indigestion," said the woman who complains.

"So do I," answered her patient-looking acquaintance.

"I never should have guessed that you were troubled with the great American malady."

"Yes. My husband has it."—Washington Star.

An Important Discovery.

Bliffers (reading)—Science now recognizes a condition called "intoxication by radiation." Many cases of drunkenness are cited in which the victim had touched nothing, but had simply been in the company of drinkers.

Whiffers—Gee Willikens! Cut that out. I want to show it to my wife.—N. Y. Weekly.

Impressed with the Fact.

"Johnnie!" said Mr. Chaffie to that hopeful youth, "I did not know until to-day that you were whipped at school last week."

"Didn't you know it, pa? I knew it all the time."—Texas Sifter.

How the Coolness Began.

Little Girl—Here's another closet. Hain't we got lots of 'em in our house?

Neighbor's Little Girl—Yes. My mamma says there's a skeleton in one of 'em. Let me see it, will you?—Chicago Tribune.

As to the Box.

Mrs. Wiggles—Was that a good box of cigars, Ephraim, that I bought for your birthday?

Mr. Wiggles (craftily)—I never saw a better box.—Somerville Journal.

Her Opinion.

Democritus—Indeed?

Mysionist—Yes. They are great observers of men.—Truth.

Calls for Admiration.

"What would you think of a man who had one wife and yet married another?" she asked, as she put aside the paper.

"I should admire his nerve," he replied.—Chicago Post.

Displacing the Horse.

"It is simply astonishing the way the bicycle is displacing the horse!"

"It is, indeed! Yesterday I found a piece of rubber tire in my sausage."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Hopelessly Aged.

"Mayme begins to look old."

"Yes; do you think she knows it?"

"She said yesterday that she was going to begin writing her name 'Mary.'"

South Australian Women.

Some interesting details are given in The Australasian Review of Reviews concerning the recent general elections in South Australia. The occasion was the first time that women there exercised the franchise, and, if any doubt existed as to whether women themselves desired to be clothed with the functions of a complete citizenship, the ballot boxes were a final answer to that doubt. The rolls included 77,464 male adults and 59,066 women voters. The act of voting for South Australian women was, of course, new and strange, yet they voted in solid battalions, and, as the small number of informal votes showed, with signal intelligence, and the percentage of voting among women voters was quite as high as that of the stronger sex. The women of South Australia, in a word, take the franchise quite seriously.

Home Millinery.

You have come back from the country, and your hat is shabby. If you will shop for it, you can buy a pretty straw for little more than half what it would have cost at the beginning of the season. Set to work and see what you can do toward trimming it. This season's fashions render amateur millinery a simple matter. When huge bows and masses of ribbon were the vogue, it was not always possible to disguise the nonprofessional touch, but every girl can twist the stems of flowers prettily. The great mistake of amateur milliners, says one who has learned the trade, "is that they put in too many stitches. Why, a few years ago a French milliner that I knew used pins largely for fastening ribbons and flowers. The more lightly that trimming can be held the prettier it will bend and fall naturally."—Brooklyn Eagle.

RAILWAY MEN TO GO TO SEE M'KINLEY

JANESVILLE DELEGATION TO VISIT CANTON, OHIO.

Companies Will Give Them Free
Transportation—Issue Is Of Vital Interest to Both Men and Corporation—Janesville People Can Hear the Soldier Orators.

A big delegation of Janesville and Rock county railroad men will go to Canton, Ohio, to see Major William McKinley, the next President of the United States.

And the companies "pay the freight."

It is a well known fact that ninety per cent. of the railway men are for honest money. Nine-tenths of this number will vote for McKinley as the surest way of defeating the free silver ticket. The railroad companies are equally interested. Their bonus are all, or nearly all, payable in gold. If free silver wins, it means that the companies must buy gold at a premium. In order to do this, they must reduce wages. Both railroads and employees are anxious to avoid this move, hence a concerted action to prevent the success of the silver men, and insure the existence of the present gold standard.

"Yes, a whole crowd of us, are going to Canton," said a well known local railroad man today. "The company will give us free transportation and we are going to call on the next president. The money question is the issue with all the railroad men. If free silver wins, our wages will be cut. That is as plain as the nose on your face."

ALGERE

To Hear Soldier Orators.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul officials have received a telegram saying that if enough Janesville people will go to Madison to hear the "six

SIGEL

soldier orators" on September 23, that company will run a special train, leaving Janesville at 7 o'clock a. m., and arriving at Madison at 8:15 o'clock.
The speaking will begin at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, so that all who go will have ample time, and arrive before the first speech is made.

The "soldier orators" are: Gen.
Daniel E. Sickles, of New York, the hero of the cavalry fight at Gettysburg,

TANNER

where he lost a leg; Gen. Russell A.
Alger, of Michigan; Gen. Franz Sigel,
and Gen. Mulholland, of New York; Gen. Stewart, of Pennsylvania, and Corporal Tanner.

Three of them are democrats and three are republicans but all are honest money advocates.
The chance to hear them, is one of life time.

FAIR TO RUN OVER UNTIL SATURDAY

TOMORROW TO BE "M'KINLEY" AND "JANESVILLE" DAY.

Ex Gov. Cumbuck Will Speak For the Republican Side, and All the Stores Will Close During the Afternoon—The Rain Makes Changes Necessary.

DESCENDED upon the just, the unjust, and the patrons of the Rock county fair, alike, today. Old Sol was ashamed to show his face after his recent tricks, and kept behind the leaking clouds. All the morning the drizzle continued. "It is too bad" the people said, but that didn't clear up the atmosphere, or put a crime of '73 lining inside the leaden clouds. Never before had prospects been so good for a big fair. Never before had the entry books been so full. Never before had stalls been so crowded with stock. Never before had Janesville merchants worked so hard to make fine displays. Never before had people brought their wares from the surrounding counties in hopes of winning Rock county cash. With all other prospects so bright, it was a shame to have the weather man turn on the hose. But the faucet was opened early, and it did business until late.

Porter Band Was Here.

The Porter band had been engaged for the day, and arrived in town early this morning. About 10 o'clock an open air concert was given at the Myers house corner, and the musicians surprised the listeners. They made most excellent music; a trombone solo being especially fine. The band is an organization that Porter may well be proud of, and the members are all musicians.

But that is another story.

Down town the water stood on the streets in pools, and everybody carried umbrellas. At the grounds, the grass was wet, and the earth soggy. Good judges said that racing would be impossible, because of the condition of the track.

About noon the sun came out for a time, but soon retired. Everything was wet at the grounds, so it was decided to postpone all the events one day, thus carrying the fair through Saturday. Thus to day's programme will be gone through with tomorrow, races and all.

McKinley Day Tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be "McKinley" day,
and also "Janesville" day. Ex-Governor Cumbuck, of Indiana, will speak on the issues of the campaign. Governor Cumbuck has been a politician for twenty years, and without doubt a very large audience will be present to hear him. He will tell all about the silver question, and the other issues of the campaign.

Janesville will turn out in full force tomorrow, and it will be "Janesville day." W. H. Greenman, George D.
Simpson and Fred S. Sheldon canvassed the city this afternoon, and all the dry goods, clothing, boot and shoe, millinery, jewelry, hardware, crockery, book and furniture stores agreed to close, while many of the drug stores and groceries will shut up. Major Potter will also try to have the O. & N.
W. road observe the day, and O. P.
McLean and Postmaster Wilson will talk to the American Express Company and your Uncle Samuel. The stores will close from 2 to 5 o'clock
p. m.

William R. Strong, of Mineral Point, and Frank Tratt, of Whitewater, said finest they ever saw at a county fair.

If the weather is favorable during ords will be broken, as the show is the best in years.

Gov. Cumbuck will speak at one o'clock.

Happy Jack will pace during the races.

IF YOU LOVE ME, TELL ME SO.

Roses are not always blooming, but the winter comes soon:
Sunbeams are not ever shining, yet the clouds oft make day want:
And if love can give us pleasure, its existence we should know:
So through cloudy days or sunny, if you love me, tell me so.

Though the flowers may be blooming, yet the breast may still be sad:
Though the sun be sweetly shining, yet the heart may not be glad:
And if love is all we deem it, its existence we should know:
So through flowery ways or barren, if you love me, tell me so.

A WEDDING PRESENT.

"Now for it," I said to myself as I undid the twine binding my precious volumes together and prepared to examine them more carefully than I had had time to do since I unearthed them from the little, dark, secondhand bookshop that afternoon. There was nothing remarkable about them; no rare editions of well known classics, no long forgotten books, valuable from their very obscurity, merely a few bound volumes of old magazines and a couple of the novels which had delighted me as a boy, and which from old association were more precious in their original type and polished leather binding than in the spruce modern editions. Best of all was a copy of Dickens' "Master Humphrey's Clock," with the woodcuts that cannot now be reproduced.

When I had gone more than half through the second volume, I came upon a large sheet of thin paper, covered with neat, cramped writing. I took it out and looked at it. A moment's inspection showed me that it was a will, written throughout in the handwriting of the testator, Michael Darcy, and dated two years before. It left interest in the farm of Carrignalea, with stock and implements, to the testator's brother, Patrick Darcy, who was also named residuary legatee, while the sum of £3,000 in railway stock and other investments was bequeathed to "my late wife's niece, Anastasia French." It was, as far as I could judge, and I had had some experience in matters of the kind, properly executed, signed and witnessed.

It was odd to find an important document of this sort hidden away between the leaves of a book. Had Patrick Darcy and Anastasia French been left without their inheritance in consequence? I wondered. I would make some inquiries about the matter next day. It would be easy to find out all about Michael Darcy of Carrignalea. Meantime, the will could remain between the leaves of "Master Humphrey's Clock."

But the morrow found me flying along by express train to the bedside of my only son, who had met with a dangerous accident. And for many weeks I could think of nothing but him and of the best means of snatching him from the extended arms of death. And when, by God's mercy, he was once more safe from those clutches as any one of us can ever be, Michael Darcy, his will, heirs and executors, had faded out of my mind as completely as if they had never entered it, and the will was resting undisturbed in its hiding place among my books.

Some 12 months later I went in a regular course of my practice to visit an old friend, who was suffering from an acute attack of pneumonia. She was an elderly lady, living alone some two or three miles outside the city. Her servants were faithful and attached, but in the absence of relatives I thought it better to insist on the services of a trained nurse. As the patient grew better and I had time to notice less important details, I perceived that Sister Anna, besides being an excellent nurse, was a very attractive young woman. She had pretty brown hair with golden lights in it waving and rippling all over a well shaped, well set head; her eyes were dark brown, and her complexion, though pale, clear and healthy looking. She was fairly tall and well built, with a look of strength and vitality pleasant to see. Her voice was low toned and pleasant, while her choice of words and manner of speaking showed her to be an educated woman.

Late one October afternoon, after a hard day's work, I drove down to Lisfallen to visit my patient, whom I had not seen for two or three days.

"Where is the sister?" I asked during a pause in the gossip with my old friend which succeeded our brief professional interview.

"Look out of the window," was the reply.

I went over to the deep bay window which formed one end of the room, and looking across the long garden, stretching behind the house, beheld Sister Anna, her prim cap laid aside, her pretty head showing above the soft gray shawl in which she had wrapped herself, and walking by her side a tall figure which I did not at first recognize. This was Laurence, Mrs. Power's nephew. He was clerk in a bank and hoped soon to be made manager of a country branch.

The young people were by this time coming up the steps leading from the garden, and presently they entered the room. Sister Anna came forward to speak to me, a pink flush on her usually pale cheek, a new light in her pretty brown eyes. Laurence Moore stood behind her, an expression of supreme content on his handsome face, while Mrs. Power looked on, quiet and keen eyed.

"I am afraid it has to be a long engagement," said Mrs. Power. "They cannot think of marrying until Laurence is a manager, and even then it would be wiser to wait until he has saved something. You know mine is but a life income, so that beyond some plate or an outfit of table linen I can do nothing to help."

Sister Anna made it clear that she did not mind waiting. Then the conversation drifted to the subject of a former talk about artificial hearts made of india rubber, which were warranted, ac-

ording to Sister Anna, "never to ache."

"Come, Anna. You cannot know much about heartaches at any rate."

"Indeed I had many a one the time of my uncle's death," she answered. "I do not know what I should have done had I not been compelled to rouse myself and work."

"Did your uncle know you would have to work?" asked Mrs. Power.

"No; he thought that he had provided for me. In fact, I am sure that he did so; but the will could never be found, so everything went to his brother."

"His brother? But why did not you, his niece, come in for your share?"

"Don't you see, although I called him uncle, I was only his wife's niece, and in reality no relation whatever. My aunt was living when I first came to them, so long ago that I can scarcely remember it; but she died soon after, and then my uncle and I took care of each other."

"How did you employ yourself?" asked Mrs. Power.

"Oh, I had the house to attend to, and the poultry yard, as well as the garden. And then I used to read a good deal; uncle had quite a collection of books. He had been buying them all his life, chiefly secondhand ones. I believe some of the books were valuable. There was an old copy of 'Master Humphrey's Clock,' with pictures in it, that used to delight me when I was a child; pictures of Nell and Quilp and Dick Swiveller."

The words "his wife's niece" had somehow seemed familiar to me, but it was not until the allusion to "Master Humphrey's Clock" had supplied another link in the chain that there flashed into my mind the remembrance of the will hidden in the old copy at home—Michael Darcy's will, with its bequest to "my wife's niece, Anastasia French."

I could hardly keep the excitement out of my voice as link after link in the chain of evidence was supplied in answer to my questions. I found that her real name was Anastasia, now cut down to Anna French; that her uncle's name was Michael Darcy, and his farm was known as Carrignalea. In reply to my query as to her reasons for believing that her uncle had made a will in her favor, she said:

"After my poor uncle got the paralytic stroke of which he died he made several attempts to speak, and as far as we could understand his words were always about money and about having 'made it all right for Annie.' Besides, our old servant always declared that about a week before his illness he had called her and another woman, who was accidentally in the house, into the sitting room and made them witness a paper which he said was a will. When they had finished signing, he said, 'I do myself, 'Now my mind is at rest about Annie.'"

"Why did he not get the will properly drawn up by a solicitor?"

"He was fond of reading lawbooks and knew something about law himself. He had sometimes made wills for other people, and I never heard that there was anything wrong about them."

"And the will could not be found?"

"The will could not be found. We hunted everywhere for it in vain, and then Patrick Darcy said he did not believe it had ever existed and that old Margaret had invented the whole story. The other woman had left the neighborhood by that time. Patrick Darcy offered to give me some money, but I refused to take a gift from him. I knew one of the nurses in the sisterhood here at Marshport. She had been nursing a lady in our neighborhood the winter before, so I wrote to her, and she got me taken as a probationer. I was there for six months, and then I went to London to be trained. I intended to revolutionize the whole art of nursing, but now Laurence has spoiled all my plans."

There was no doubt that this was the heiress of the will in my possession. The question was, Did the £3,000 exist, or had the heir-at-law made away with it?

I took my leave as soon as I could. The first thing I did on reaching home was to take "Master Humphrey" from the bookshelf and make sure that the will was quite safe. Next morning I took it to my own solicitor, who assured me that it was a valid will, properly executed. In a few days he informed me that Patrick Darcy was a well to do man and a mark for a larger sum than the one due to Anastasia French.

A day or two later, therefore, I presented myself again at Mrs. Power's.

"I have brought you a wedding present, my dear," I said to Sister Anna, handing her the three volumes of "Master Humphrey."

"Indeed, Dr. Moran," said Sister Anna, "I don't think anything could give me greater pleasure than this; it is just like the copy of 'Master Humphrey' we had at home. Why, I do believe it is the actual book. Here is the very pencil mark that poor uncle was so angry with me for making. Where did you get this, Dr. Moran? Was it from Patrick Darcy?"

"I bought it, my dear, at a second-hand bookshop a year or two ago. It was only the other day I discovered that you had an interest in it. Turn to the picture of Barnaby and his raven. I think you will find something there that concerns you."

She turned the pages with a practiced hand until she reached the one she sought.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "here is my uncle's writing! How strange it seems to find it here!"

"Read it," I said.

She glanced quickly over it, the color fading out of her cheek as she did so. "It is the will," she gasped—"my uncle's will."—Chambers' Journal.

Emblems Signifying Excellence.

In England a certain emblem known as the "Hall mark" is placed upon articles to signify that they are made of Sterling silver, and this mark is proof to the prospective purchaser that he is getting metal of the first grade. It would be absurd to place this mark on articles made of metals varying in purity.

The "GARLAND" trade-mark is placed on ONLY THE BEST GRADE of stoves, and this can truthfully be said of no other line of stoves made under one name.

We show the largest line of Garlands this year we ever have before, and to satisfy all comers we show a full line of

RADIANT HOMES AND PENINSULARS.

THE RADIANT HOME STOVES will heat a larger space than any other make. That point is conceded by all; it's a universal fact.

PENINSULAR STOVES are well known to every person. They always do the work at the right time.

IF YOU WANT A STOVE, IF YOU DON'T WANT A STOVE

WHITE IS FASHIONABLE.

Becoming Belts For Stout People—White Petticoats Fashionable Again.

Large revers and collars of white silk, with applications of butter colored lace and embroidery, are having a decided vogue, which will probably continue through the winter; also corselets, boleros and wide belts, fitted by darts and more appropriately designated corselets in em-

brodery or in lace, part ecru and part white, applied on velvet, satin or a silk of the same color as the costume, are very much a la mode.

Speaking of belts and corselets, there is now a fashion, very fortunate for women inclined to too much plumpness, of belts forming a point in front and finished at the back by two long coques, which complete the curve of the waist satisfactorily and decrease the importance of the hips if they are a trifle too wide.

White petticoats are again having their innings, and in spite of silk, satin and other luxurious materials, there is nothing quite so feminine and dainty as white, washable underwear after all. There are women who will wear no other kind, except, of course, an outside petticoat of colored stuff for ordinary use. The present white petticoat is of lawn, cambric or batiste, embroidered on the goods itself or trimmed with flounces of embroidery alternating with ruffles of lace. There are also skirts of white tulle and surah, trimmed with the same material or with flounces of gauze, bordered with very fine and narrow guipure or with narrow valenciennes lace.

A sketch is given of a costume of helio-trope broche silk. The skirt has five godets. The bodice is trimmed at the sides with white guipure, a chemise of heliotrope satin showing at both back and front. The tight sleeve is of broche silk, the puff at the top being of heliotrope satin and forming a butterfly drapery. The cravat is of heliotrope gauze, the corselet of heliotrope satin.

AUTUMN STYLES.

Autumn Sleeves—Decrease In the Width of the Newest Skirts.

Serge is to be very much worn in both the wool and mohair varieties, wide and narrow rib. Few materials are as genuinely serviceable as this, which will stand "all kinds of wind and weather" and lends itself admirably to tailor made styles. Red serge will be much worn, and white also, since white gowns continue to be fashionable. Purplish navy blue and black are also favorites.

The decrease in the size of skirts is already noticeable and is very evident in the autumn models. Much less stiffening is used also. The diminution of sleeves keeps pace with that of skirts, the fullness being now confined to the top of the sleeve and no stiff interlining being employed. Altogether this winter's costumes bid fair to be much more comfortable and convenient than those of a year ago.

Sleeves with tight fitting foundations are now the correct form, but there are puffs, plaitings, gores and insets that do away with the tight effect, at least in the upper part. One of the new models shows the sleeve fitting quite closely from wrist to elbow, the portion above being slashed in three places. Into these openings are set puffings of lace over bright colored silks. This is a type of one of the coming fashions—close sleeves with slashed tops and contrasting puffings.

A new cape for evening wear is of taffeta with a flower pattern in which gold threads appear. Another is composed entirely of petals of flowers arranged in flounces. In these capes are often combined two shades of the same color with a different color—for instance, pale mauve, deep mauve and pink, pale pink, deep pink and pale blue.

The illustration shows a pretty costume of black and white figured taffeta. The seams of the bodice are trimmed with bands of mousseline, through which are run very narrow black ribbons, bows of black velvet being placed at the lower end. The blouse bodice is gathered behind and crossed in front, the edges of the front being trimmed with bands like those on the skirt. A cluster of loops of narrow black ribbon is placed at the crossing of the front. The puffed sleeve terminates at the elbow under a mousseline band. The belt is of black satin.

THE CELEBRATED ORR PANTALOON OVERALL WARRANTED NEVER TO RIP.

Stranger—"What does the above picture represent?"

Mechanic—"These men are testing the strength of the famous ORR PANTALOON OVERALLS, manufactured by SWEET, ORR & Co., which is guaranteed by them to be so strongly sewed that three times as many men could not pull them apart."

Stranger—"This is wonderful! What other merits has the garment?"

Mechanic—"Well, I have been wearing this Overall for many years, and it is the only one I have ever seen which always fits perfectly about the hips and gives plenty of seat room, to that no binding is felt by the wearer, no matter what position he may assume. You will notice, also, that these Overalls are double sewed all through, both on the outside and on the inside leg seams, and this is a point to be particularly noticed. Thus, you will see, it is impossible for these Overalls to rip, and the manufacturers can well guarantee them, which they do, Never to Rip."

Stranger—"What further?"

Mechanic—"Observe the buttons. You may be sure that your wife will never be called upon to sew them on again. Also SWEET, ORR & Co. never use any seconds in their goods, but always the first quality, so that a thousand pair or a hundred thousand always run exactly like one pair."

Stranger—"I suppose there are imitation goods in the market?"

Mechanic—"You may be sure of that, so you must always look for the button and see that SWEET, ORR & Co. is stamped upon it."

Stranger—"Are there any other kinds of goods manufactured by this firm?"

Mechanic—"I should say so; why, they make the best cottonade pants, jean pants, wool and corduroy pants, and working shirts ever offered to the working-man. There is no fifteen-dollar pair of pants better finished than the Cottonade and Jean Pants manufactured by this firm and retailed by the trade at $1.50 and $2.00.
